ANY GREEN WINS TOP AWARD IN I-PLANTS MAGAZINE'S INTERNATIONAL DESIGN CONTEST

The Woodlands, Texas, June 17, 2015

Johnson Fediw Associates, publisher of I-Plants Magazine, announced the winners of its International Design Contest today. Any Green of Belgium won First Place in the Green Walls-Artificial Foliage category for their project at Sanoma Magazines.

This is the first time an award has been won for a green wall made with artificial or preserved material, and the first time a European business has won an award in this annual contest.

Entries were judged by a panel of 3 experts--a landscape designer, a special events designer and an interior plantscape designer. Entries were judged on the uniqueness and innovation of their design; innovative use of materials; and the appropriateness and satisfaction of the client.

"This project is unique for its design. This team really thought outside the box to bring their client and their visitors something truly special," says Kathy Fediw, LEED AP ID+C, publisher of I-Plants Magazine. "This innovative project is an inspiration to others in the design industry and really showcases what can be done. We are very proud to recognize their talents and know that they are bringing fresh and innovative design to their clients and their community."
